I have a problem. My PC get stuck during loading and when I decide to shut down or restart my computer, it doesn't work. It doesn't matter if I try to make a manual shutdown. I have to remove the USB 3.0 that is plugged in to my DVD player to the PC to make it work. At first I had that issue when I had it reboot automatically after every time I closed it. Now it happens only when I close it. Please help. A: Easy Solution: Remove all external USB devices and restart the computer. Optionally: Restart the computer with a usb device still plugged into it. Log: Error 21A stopping device\r Error 22 abnormal termination of device\r Device Power Status: Device Busy; Device Active; Device Inactive; Device Unknown\r Device Device Class: Logical Unit\r Path\r Device\r Location\r Local port number\r 0x00C8: 0x0010 Remote solution: If you need to run the command line disk management tools, there is a potentially damaging incompatibility between the Disk Management UI and DiskPart which Windows XP uses to access the disks (for instance, installing a SCSI driver could cause diskpart to not show disks even if there is a disk with the SCSI driver loaded). You can check if DiskPart sees the disks using the command line tools. Use diskpart.exe and type the following: list disks Disk 570a42141b
